

6. The Missing Cookie Caper

It was a ugly scene. Chocolate fingerprints were smeared on the cookie jar, the kitchen counter, and the younger child's bedroom door. The culprit seems obvious. However, there was a few doubts. Sean, the younger child, was five years old and only forty inches high. The cookie jar was placed on a kitchen shelf. About three feet above the counter. The counter was two feet from the ground. Suspicions began to turn to the older child, Jason. However, Jason was eight years old and only five feet high. Furthermore, Jason's left arm was in a cast. The parent's of the two boys were puzzled. "Who could of done this," they asked?

This drawing shows one possible solution. Here are the clues:

Clue 1: Jason is forty-eight inches high; Sean is forty inches high.

Clue 2: Sean's fingerprints were found on the cookie jar.

Clue 3: Both boys were grinning from ear to ear

Find the 10 errors in this activity. There are no errors in the illustration or the caption.
